OF FRANCE

CHAMPAGNE

CHAMPAGNE wines are renowned for their effervescence, elegance, and complex flavors, often characterized by delicate bubbles, crisp acidity, and notes of citrus, apple, and toasty brioche, defining celebratory sophistication.

LES GRANDE MARQUES? The term meaning 'Great Brands' encompasses the world's most popular Champagne houses most have heard of. Many of these Champagne houses buy grapes from plots all over the region, in addition to the ones they own.

GROWER CHAMPAGNE The term Growner Champagne indicates a producer who grows their own grapes and also vinifies the wine.

BLANC DE BLANCS champagne is made from chardonnay and among the world's most highly revered wines.

BLANC DE NOIRS champagne is made from Pinot Noir and/or Meunier and are some of the most expressive and experimental of Champagnes.

SPARKLING wines of France that aren't called Champagne can be just as interesting and in some cases much more experimental. Every region produces its own version of bubbles. These are wines of incredible value.

BLANC

ALSACE

ALSACE wines are celebrated for their aromatic richness, showcasing vibrant fruitiness, floral aromas, and a signature dryness. Known for varieties like Riesling and Gewürztraminer, they offer exquisite balance and food-friendly versatility.
